When the grudging sun at last came forth the following morning, nothing seemed wanting to make the occasion a complete success. In the rejoicing many were willing to grant that Hayes s pacification policy was justified by the manifest decrease of sectional animosity; that the reception recently accorded to a regiment of New York militia on a visit to New Orleans was sufficient evidence that the new era was really at hand.2 Regardless of party, the nation felt a sense of relief that the crisis of a presidential election was passed without a repetition of the uncertainty of four years before. The sentiment which attended the unexpected nomination of Garfield, which created a halo about the canal-boat boy in the campaign, was renewed...
