His body being carried off, HECTOR and ZENEAS pursue the Greeks- to the fortificationfl And in the eighteenth, upon ACHIL- LEScts appearing, they retire and encamp without the fortifi- cation. IN the twentieth, the fight is still on that fide next the sea, because the Trojans, being pursued by ACHILLES, pass over the Scamander as they run towards Troy . POPE seems surprised that HOMER has not expressed the manner in which the armies passed the river. The reason of his silence on that subject is easily explained. The Scamander is but a rivulet about fifteen feet broad, and three feet deepPope might have suspected this to be the reason, since he has. himself very properly remarked, that the following battles. are either in the river irsdf, or between that and the city. How could an...
